Hello and welcome to OUA. I'm Dr. Ann Deden, Academic General Manager, Academic Products and Services. As you have enrolled through OUA, we will continue to support you as you study. Open Universities Australia - or OUA - is a consortium of seven leading Australian universities. RMIT is one of those.

By studying through OUA, you receive additional services, and access to unique resources. For instance, the OUA Advisors are available online and by phone to answer any questions about enrolment, schedules, and records, as well as any program changes you might want to make as you go along.

As an OUA member, RMIT provides you with extensive e-library resources matched to each course you take, so you don't have to wait for books or printouts to arrive. And as an OUA student, the OUA website gives you access to a number of planning resources, including the Quick Skills Modules, winners of the national 2006 Carrick award for excellent in flexible distance teaching and learning. These highly interactive and personalised modules help you take a project management approach to your studies, and provide some very useful tools for doing that. For an MBA student, nothing could be more appropriate.
